FOREWORD

We of the 1962-63 Anchor staff have compiled a yearbook which we believe to be full of pleasant memories and unforgettable experiences. We have tried to recapture the ball games, school work, social events, and all of the other highlights of the past year here at Gardner-Webb College.

We hope that this year's Anchor will be pleasing and satisfying to each student and faculty member. Our goal has been to create a yearbook which will be a source of enjoyment, fond memories, and a treasure which you will cherish for many years to come.

DEDICATION

Every student admires certain characteristics in a teacher. Some of these characteristics are patience, kindness, understanding, and, above all, a dedication and a sincerity toward his work. The teacher should be a devout Christian, seeking through his work to serve his pupils, his school, his country, and his God. We of the 1963 Anchor staff believe that all these and many other characteristics have been exhibited by Mr. H. C. Dixon, who is now in his twenty-eighth year of service at Gardner-Webb. For this reason we dedicate this 1963 Anchor to our professor and friend, Mr. Hubert C. Dixon.

Relaxing in his favorite chair, Mr. Dixon enjoys reading his newspaper after a busy day of teaching classes.

Being very proud of their new car, Mr. Dixon and his family were very easily persuaded to pose for this picture.

The "natural habitat" for Mr. Dixon is his office or his classroom where he is surrounded by books, papers, and students — the things which make up his work and the things with which he loves to work.

The Program In The Arts

GARDNER-WEBB'S CULTURAL AND CREATIVE EMPHASIS

Dr. Kermit Hunter, author of plays and outdoor dramas, led off the Program In The Arts with a lecture on the outdoor drama.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jolley and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Harris enjoy refreshments at the Faculty-Student Reception.

Eugene List and Carroll Glenn appeared at the college in cooperation with the Sheby Community Concert Series. This talented team of pianist and violinist thrilled both students and faculty members.

Dr. Leo Eddleman, President of The New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, lectured to students in chapel and talked privately with ministerial students.

A scene from Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." This was the first play given by the Gardner-Webb Playcrafters. Many people from the college and surrounding community attended one or more of the three excellent performances.

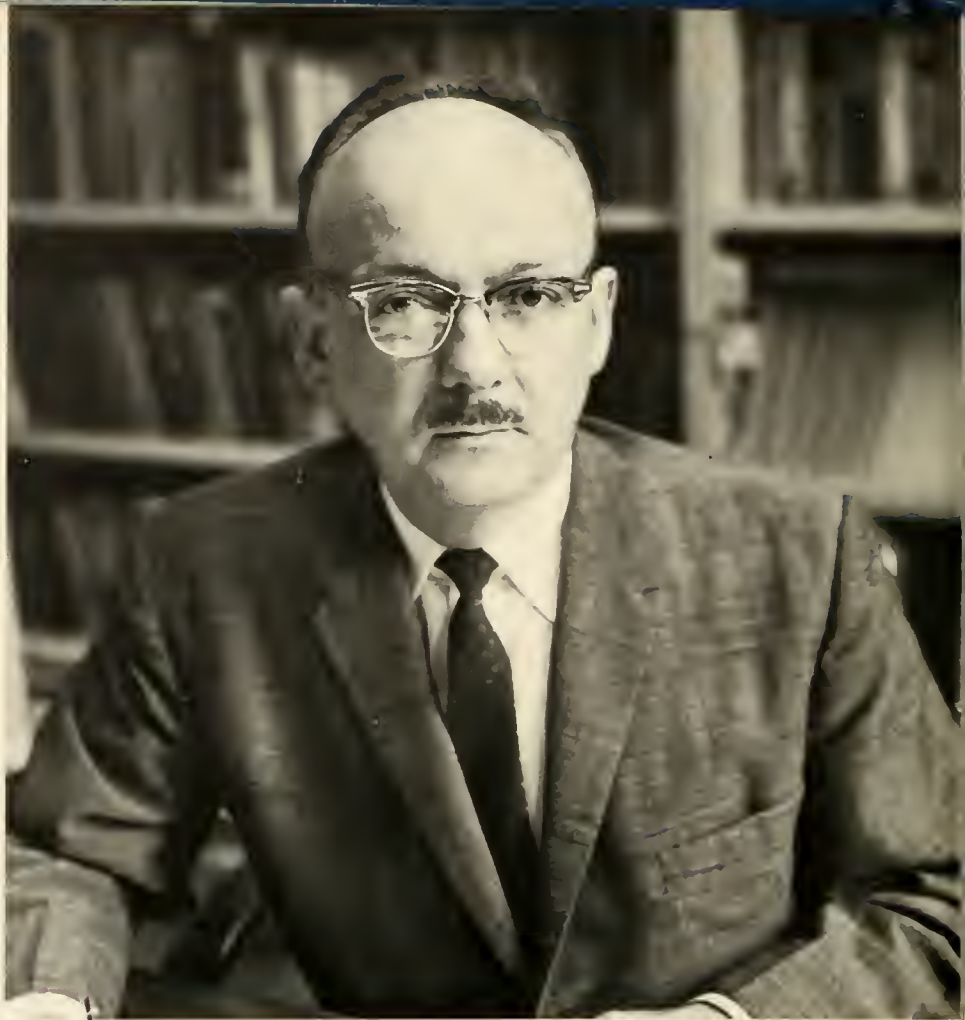

For the enjoyment of the students, faculty, and members of the community, The Program In The Arts brought Stephen Kovacs, renowned concert pianist, to the college.

LeGette Blythe, famous North Carolina writer and lecturer, spoke to the student body about the fine points of writing and about the life of the late writer, Thomas Wolfe.

Dr. Cratis Williams, Dean of The Graduate School at Appalachian State Teachers College, amused and delighted both students and faculty with his singing of ballads and folk songs.

Glenda Turner and Professor Thomas Harris in "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Dotty Pennington casts a fearful eye in the direction of reassuring Tom Harris in the Gardner-Webb Playcrafters' production of "The Importance of Being Earnest."

1962 MAY COURT

In May of 1962 the circus came to Boiling Springs. It was not the Barnum and Bailey Circus but the Gardner-Webb Circus in the form of a May Day program in the Physical Education Building. Seven acts were given, with Joel Walker serving as ringmaster. Such delightful events as a cycling act, a bouncing ball act, and a group of trapeze artists, served to thrill the large crowd that was present for the festival. One of the most hilarious acts was a performance by the 'Capering Clowns.' Bill Bridges and Dave Johnson thrilled everyone with a realistic elephant act.

In an impressive chapel service, Head Coach, Norman Harris, and Line Coach, John Spencer, present a lettered football to Enoch McCarter and Woody Dillard, co-captains of the 1962 Bulldogs.
